This morning one of the visitors wanted to wash and as the sergeants had been instructed to show them he favors he was directed to the nearest middly stream, where hardy artillery men were standing in mul and lee, bus with soap, brushes and frigid water. It appeared to be too much for one member of the party, so the captain allowed him to share his billet, which had a stove.

All the members of the party agreed that even under the most trying offernustances and semetimes with a single apparent confort, except possibly a character, the morale and demeanor of the soldiers was the linest possible. Today the visitors spent part of the time with former. National Guardamen from their respective home Stars.
